Gordon Jack is currently a Partner at Tidwell Group. He has over 35 years of accounting experience including multi-national corporations and public accounting experience in local, regional and national firms.

Gordon has extensive experience with clients in the real estate industry. This includes working with developers and investors in dealing with the tax and accounting aspects of the development and operations, including low income housing tax credits. He is also called upon to work with the IRS in resolving tax credit issues. His other experience covers tax, accounting and closely held business consulting with industry experience including professional publications, financial institution service organizations, oil and gas partnerships, foreign corporation transfer pricing and subsidiary accounting, franchises, mortgage brokerage firms, professional service firms and various other closely held businesses.

Besides his extensive responsibilities assisting clients in the real estate industry, he is also responsible in helping clients with their personal, business and estate tax planning, tax authority representation and assisting the closely held business attain its potential.

Gordon is called upon to teach classes concerning accounting, income tax and increasing the value of your closely held business as well as discussing accounting as a profession with high school and college students.
